CMSAF addresses quality-of-life issues before House subcommittee

WASHINGTON (AFPN) — The Air Force's top enlisted person, Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force Jim Finch, addressed quality-of-life issues before the House Armed Services Committee, Subcommittee on Installations and Facilities May 9.

In his remarks, he addressed the continuing need for improved quality of life for the more than 400,000 enlisted active duty, Reserve and Guard members he represents.

"We, the Air Force, are committed to taking care of our people and their families, who can be found in just about all corners of the world," he said.

Finch relates the welfare of these people to Air Force readiness. But, he said, "because quality of life is a broad term, with different meanings to everyone, we continue to pursue improvements in several areas."

In written remarks, the chief identified core quality-of-life priorities: adequate manpower, improved workplace environments, fair and competitive compensation and benefits, balanced tempo, quality health care, safe and affordable housing, enhanced community and family programs, and enriched educational opportunities.

"Our Air Force comprises true professionals, willing to give their lives, if necessary, to accomplish the mission," he said.

News briefs

Elementary school registration

The elementary school is taking registrations for the 2001-2002 school year. Children who will be 5 before Oct. 31 are eligible for kindergarten. Parents of returning students should stop by the school office, 7 a.m.-5 p.m., to verify information and reenroll. For more information call 2-6216.

Vet services temporarily limited

The veterinary technician will be off the island Monday-June 2. The clinic will be open from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for over-the-counter sales and to process animals in and out of the base for permanent change of station moves. For emergencies and sick call, pets must be seen by an off-base veterinarian. For more information call 2-3134.

Help paint the high school

High school officials are looking for volunteers for a one-day painting project to improve the high school. Two sessions are scheduled for May 31 -- 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-4:30 p.m. The students will be on a field trip that day. To volunteer or for more information, call the high school at 2-2305.

Housing repairs

Question: About six weeks ago I reported to the civil engineer squadron that the spigot in my shower was leaking and there was also a hole in the shower. Workers came out and fixed the leak, but not the hole.

They told me they would be back the next day, but never showed up. I have called CE numerous times during the last six weeks, and they always tell me the person who does this work isn't there.

I would like to get the hole fixed. What can you do to help me resolve this issue?

Answer: Thanks for the call. Housing maintenance calls often require follow-up visits to make final repairs after plumbing has been fixed.

As I learned, the craftsmen arrived a few minutes late at your quarters and missed you on their return visit. Miscommunication resulted in the job being closed rather than rescheduled.

When you highlighted the error with your call, a new appointment was made and the repairs completed.

As you can imagine, scheduling repairs for 448 on-base units and appliance work in more 200 off-base residences is a challenge.

We strive to keep all appointments, but if we miss you, please call our housing customer service number at 295-57-6251 and we will try to reschedule at your convenience.

Leaders send Armed Forces Day message

Dr. Lawrence J. Delaney
Acting Secretary of the Air Force and
Gen. Michael E. Ryan
Air Force Chief of Staff

WASHINGTON (AFPN) — When President Truman first established Armed Forces Day in 1950, he created a single day to celebrate the dedication, sacrifice and excellence of all the military services. The theme of that first Armed Forces Day was "Teamed for Defense" — a precursor of our future.

Through five decades our military members — airmen, soldiers, sailors and Marines — have teamed with our civilian counterparts to create the greatest military in the world.

This joint team is the embodiment of integrity, service, excellence, and is "Teamed for Defense" like never before.

On Armed Forces Day, Saturday, the nation pays homage to our military men and women, our civilian members, our families, and the communities who support us. If you wear, or have worn, the American military uniform, this is a day to be proud and to savor the respect of a grateful nation.

We sincerely thank each and every one of you for your service before self commitment to our nation.

Ferryboats sail between islands

Will the ferryboats run again this summer between the Azorean islands?

Answer: As it has been for the last two years, two ferryboats will travel among eight of the nine Azorean islands during the summer months.

The first ferryboat, named "Golfinho Azul," or Blue Dolphin, is already sailing in the Azorean waters and is expected to operate through Oct. 21.

This boat is the property of an Azorean maritime company, and it can transport approximately 750 passengers and more than 120 vehicles. It also has 123 cabins with a 241-passenger capacity, a restaurant, movie theater and two bars.

The second ferryboat, named "Cachalote," or Sperm Whale, is expected to begin sailing June 28 and will operate through Sept. 20 only among the central group of islands – Terceira, Graciosa, São Jorge, Pico and Faial. Golfinho Azul will travel mostly among Terceira, São Miguel, Santa Maria and occasionally to Flores and the other central group islands.

These two ferryboats offer a unique opportunity to travel to the other islands and also take your own vehicle at an inexpensive cost.

Check out the ferryboat schedules at the public affairs office, Bldg. T-100, Rm. 207 or on the web at the following address: <http://www.matosarte.com/turangra>.

Tickets can be purchased at the port of Praia one hour before departure time or at the travel agency "TurAngra" at Rua da Artesia in Praia. Round-trip prices range between 10,000-15,500 escudos. For information call me at Ext. 2-3413.

Legal office offers advice on AF claims for burglary

By Tech. Sgt. Kimberly Lincoln
Legal office

During the past few months, break-ins on and off base have been on the rise.

In some instances people have left windows open or doors unlocked while they were away and returned home work, leave or temporary to find their homes burglarized.

It's important to keep all doors and windows locked, and property kept outside should also be secured.

Another good idea is to ask a neighbor to keep an eye out for anything suspicious. If you see anything out of the ordinary, call security forces or the local national police department.

Another important point -- don't keep a lot of cash in the house. When filing a claim, $200 is considered a reasonable amount of cash to have in the home.

People should keep a log of all their valuables -- makes, models and serial numbers.

When filing an Air Force claim for stolen items, the victim must provide a complete description and proof of ownership, like the original receipt or other similar substantiation.

The Air Force isn't a substitute for private insurance. Members should seriously consider getting private renters' insurance.

In addition to home burglaries, there has also been an increase in reports of items being stolen from automobiles.

Any items left visible in a vehicle are an open invitation for someone to break the window and take them. If something must be left in a vehicle overnight, put it in the trunk or under the seat where it can't be seen.

Don't leave your car unlocked to keep thieves from breaking your window. As long as there is nothing in the vehicle, there is no reason for a thief to break the window.

The family car is not a storage place for valuables like a CD collection, camera or money. From a claims perspective, as a general rule, no more than five CDs should be kept in a vehicle.

People who fall victim to theft should file a claim with their private insurance company before calling the claims office and filing a claim with the Air Force.

Thefts also occur in offices, so it's important not to keep personal valuables at the workplace.

Claims officials will allow some leeway if the items are necessary for the performance of duty. However, high-value stereo equipment, cameras, coin collections, more than five CDs and items of this nature should not be kept at the workplace. Bottom line, if you don't actually use it to do your job, don't leave it at work.

For more information on filing claims for stolen items, call the legal office at 2-3546.

Aquaknights

Looking at Terceira through different eyes

Staff Sgt. Beverly Isik
Public affairs

Lajes' Aquaknights of Atlantis aren't explorers searching for a lost civilization. They're just looking for fun.

Members of the club, which was established in the 1960s, can be found most weekends diving and snorkeling in the waters around Terceira or other Azorean islands.

Enjoying the rich underwater plants and animals, members dive throughout the year doing night and day dives at sites like Biscoitos and Cinco Ribeiras.

They see many rays during dives around Split Rock, and a group recently swam with a huge sea turtle at o Belo Abismo in Biscoitos.

"Diving has made this island a lot more fun," said Shelly Bell, who joined the club last summer. "You can only see the sights around the island so many times. But when you go in the ocean, it's a whole different world with a lot to explore -- even a few caves."

Marine life flourishing in the local waters include wrasses (small, vibrantly colored fish), groupers and octopus.

Snorklers can take many types of fish home for the family aquarium. However, one of the first things taught in certification classes is that it's illegal to take marine life while scuba diving.

"There's also a lot of barracuda," said Master Sgt. Steve Beveridge, club president. "I saw a school of about 30 of them a couple of weeks ago -- about four feet long."

Not to worry, Beveridge said. "I had to sneak up on them, then when they realized I was there, they swam off."

Because Terceira isn't subtropical climate, Beveridge said there's not a lot of hard coral reefs, but there's an abundance of soft corals.

If scenes from Jaws come to mind when thinking of the deep blue sea, never fear. "There are hammerheads in the area," Beveridge said. "But, the most dangerous part of diving here is the drive to the beach."

Because of their love for the underwater world, members joined forces to clean up the waters at São Mateus during Earth Week, removing 800 pounds of debris, including bottles, plastic containers, old pieces of boats and aluminum cans. They also helped the high school in its beach cleanup efforts at Negrilo and Quatro Ribeiras.

Aquaknights come in all shapes and sizes and ages. "We focus on the family," Beveridge said. "Children are more than welcome at our club meetings, and although they have to be at least 17 to scuba dive, we have members as young as 7 who snorkel. It's for everybody."

The family tie is an attraction for many members. "I used to scuba dive here with the Aquaknights in the '70s with my husband and son," said Doty Macy, a Lajes elementary school teacher. "For us it was a family event."

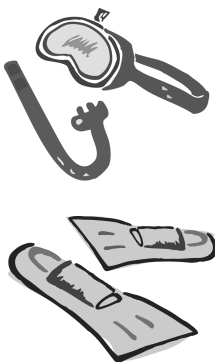

People don't have to be advanced swimmers to learn scuba diving or snorkeling, and the requirements are moderate, according to Beveridge.

"It's simple to learn," said Bell, whose first experience snorkeling and diving were here at Lajes. "And it's the greatest thing. I swear, I feel like I lose 5 pounds every time I go scuba diving. It's a great workout, but you don't even feel like you're exerting yourself."

Safe, easy and the price isn't bad either. "If you've ever had an inclination to do it, there's plenty of qualified people here to ensure you're safely instructed," Macy said. "And it's less expensive and more convenient than most places you'll be stationed in the States."

Stop by their club on Santa Rita Hill, next to AFN, June 1 at 7 p.m., for free pizza and find out more. Or for more information call Beveridge at 2-6455 or 295-579-273. The club meets Mondays and Fridays, 7-9 p.m.

"People who come to Lajes and don't scuba dive or snorkel only experience half the beauty of the island," Beveridge said. "It's a whole other world under the water line."

"I believe this level of dedication and commitment deserves a standard of living equal to their contribution to America and at least comparable with their civilian counterparts."

Verbally, he highlighted the workplace and living quarters. He also talked about lack of people and resources.

Even though he said he appreciates the initiatives taken last year by Congress in the National Defense Authorization Act, more must still be done to retain America's best and brightest.

"And, it must be done in the near future, as approximately 193,000 airmen, 69 percent of the active duty enlisted force, will make a reenlistment decision between now and fiscal year 2004," Finch said.

Also playing an important role in quality-of-life are living quarters.

"Our airmen residing on the installation ... deserve to return to adequate quarters whether it be in a dormitory or in family housing," the chief master sergeant of the year said. "I firmly believe there is a direct correlation between safe, affordable housing and being able to recruit, motivate and retain a top-quality professional force," he said.

Using the current family housing master plan, the chief said resources required to meet the defense secretary's goal of revitalizing inadequate units by 2010 will fall short with continued constrained funding.

Students enjoy Arabian nights

Nineteen actors and actresses from the Lajes High School Theatre Troupe took performed "Scheherazade: Legends of the Arabian Nights, May 11 and 13 in the community center.

Students, under the direction of Rita Bohn, rehearsed for the show for nine weeks and were responsible for lights, sound and props.

Mete Tanyeri in the role of Nafario, draws his sword on King Raynah, Ryan Rhodes, during a story told by the king's wife Scheherazade, played by Briannon Scott. This was the last Lajes performance for seniors Tanyeri and Scott.

(V, violence; S, sex or sensuality; D, drug use; L, language; G, gore)

SaturdayTraffic

Michael Douglas, Don Cheadle; a Mexican policeman works around the border. Confronted with temptations of power and money, he resists them but is caught in a web of corruption. R (D, L, S, V).

Sunday, 4 p.m.Recess: school's Out

Animated. There's one thing better than recess -- summer vacation. G.

MondaySaving Silverman

Jason Biggs, Steve Zahn Darren; they've been best friends since the fifth grade when they swore nothing could break them up. Now, a psychiatrist snatches Darren from the friendship. PG-13 (S, L).

Tuesday 15 Minutes

Robert De Niro is a police detective investigating a brutal murder committed by a psychopath who was seeking his 15 minutes of fame. Media representatives create a sensational atmosphere. Reporters and journalists exploit each new detail, obscuring the truth. R (V, L, S).

Wednesday Monkey bone

Brendan Fraser, Bridget Fonda, Paul Reubens, Whoopi Goldberg; the comedy revolves around a cartoonist and the incredible fantasy world that takes place in his mind after he slips into a coma. Action and stop animation. PG-13.

TuesdayGet Over It

Kirsten Dunst, Ben Foster; he thought his senior year was going to be perfect. He was wrong. PG-13 (S, D, L).

FridaySee spot run

David Arquette, Michael Clarke; he offers to babysit the young son of his beautiful neighbor, but finds himself with a new animal in his life: an FBI agent's drug dog. PG (L, V).

FridayExit wounds, 10 p.m.

Steven Seagal; 50 kilos of heroin disappear from the property vaults of the toughest precinct in Detroit and no one knows how. R (V, S, N, L).
